Place: The posters will be presented in the Computer Sciences Building room 337. All students should be there 10 minutes before it starts to find your posters and get organized and must be present throughout the whole time (mandatory). Whoever can come earlier and help us with hanging the posters is very welcome!!

The posters will be presented in two sessions:
12:30-13:30: The pairs with posters with odd numbers present and all the others are expected to visit the other posters.
13:30-14:30: The pairs with posters with even numbers present and the others are expected to visit the other posters.

By tomorrow we will upload the list of posters and the number of your poster, make sure to check if it is an odd or even number

During the whole session bioinformatics researchers (that were invited specially to the event) will be around and will assess your posters. Every poster will be assessed by at least one judge. You are expected to present your poster to whoever comes. When going through the posters of your colleagues do not be shy to ask questions, it helps the presenters!!

Below see some tips on how to present a poster.

How to present a poster:
You should prepare in advance a 10-15 minute presentation to describe your project, guided by your poster. You should remember that the people (judges and other students) are not familiar with the project so you should give a short description of the question and the motivation of the project. Further you should describe in short what you did and summarize the results and your conclusions. It is also good to share the difficulties and problems you encountered during the project. Remember this is a course project and you are not expected to have novel results, negative results are very common for short term projects!!!

Important! During the presentation of the poster you will be asked questions and each one of you should be prepared to answer them.

We understand you are nervous but we can assure you it is going to be a great experience!!!

Looking forwards to see you all on Wednesday

GOOD LUCK
